Editorial

The Journal of Production Engineering (JPE) dates back to 1984, when the first issue of the Proceedings of the Institute of Production Engineering was published in order to present its accomplishments. In 1994, after a decade of successful publication, the Proceedings changed the name into Production Engineering, with a basic idea of becoming a Yugoslav journal which publishes original scientific papers in this area.

The Journal of Production Engineering is a prestigious publication dedicated to advancing the fields of production engineering and technology. With a primary focus on industrial engineering and operations research, JPE aims to promote excellence in manufacturing processes worldwide. Known for its commitment to publishing compelling scientific results with clear applications in various fields, JPE emphasizes industrial practice, manufacturing technology, engineering, management science, and the optimization of complex processes, systems, or organizations. It serves as a platform for disseminating groundbreaking research that leads to practical advances.
